The Northcote Road Summer Fete from Wild About Battersea by Andrew Wilson

It's the summer!

School's almost out, so make the most of living in the Brighter Borough this summer.

There's loads going on across the borough during the school holidays, with plenty to get people up and moving. The Get Active Wandsworth Festival on July 18 and the Roehampton Festival on August 23 are both free and packed full of fun activities including music, dancing, sports taster sessions and the chance to get a free health check.

Wandsworth Museum – now based alongside the BAC in Battersea – is travelling around the borough using Wandsworth's rich history to spark youngsters' imagination and bookworms can pit themselves against the Summer Reading Challenge run in all the borough's libraries. Or you can chill out at the Lido or one of the borough's parks, or enjoy the novelty of a car free Putney during the RideLondon event – the town's hosting its first ever car-free day, with families activities throughout the day.

We'd love your feedback, so email us on headstart@wandsworth.gov.uk.

Let us know what you think about our new look, and give us ideas for events and stories for the next edition in October.

Cash for family centre

Lindon Lodge School has been given a grant to buy special equipment and books for its new Family Centre – the first of its kind in the UK. The money has come from the Wimbledon Foundation, the charity arm of the All England Club.

The fund also awarded money to Love to Read, a community based project in Wandsworth run through St Michael's Church. The project, which currently runs in two local primary schools, provides literacy opportunities to children who need extra support.

The money will enable the project to double the number of families helped, run weekly parent and toddler sessions, and buy books, musical instruments and craft materials.

Safer walk to Sheringdale

Work has been done to improve road safety on the approaches to Sheringdale School.

A 20 mph limit has been introduced in Standen Road near the entrance to the popular primary school, while raised carriageway tables have also been installed at the junctions with Balvernie Grove and Bowman Mews.

These are designed to reduce traffic speeds and improve visibility for both pedestrians and drivers. They also provide step free crossing points for parents with buggies and for wheelchair users.

Signage and road markings have also been upgraded to alert motorists that they are approaching a school.

Sheringdale is an "outstanding" school according to education inspectors from Ofsted, who praised its "outstanding teaching" which they said "ensures that pupils make rapid progress and achieve exceptionally well whatever their starting points."

Extra school places from September

More school places will be available in the borough, as new schools open and popular existing schools expand.

New school Floreat Wandsworth will open in Garratt Lane, Earlsfield, in September providing an extra 420 places to children of all backgrounds and abilities in this part of the borough. Meanwhile Mosaic School is expected to move into its new premises in Roehampton Lane in time for the new term, with space for another reception class.

Two popular schools, Sheringdale and Penwortham, accepted more children last September, but from next term building work will increase space and improve facilities at the schools to enable permanent expansion.

The works at Sheringdale include a new two storey classroom block, partial refurbishment of the existing school and an extension to the dining hall. Penwortham is getting a new year six building.

Other primary schools that will be accepting more pupils from September include Gatton, Hillbrook and Allfarthing.

Meanwhile there will be extra secondary school places at Harris Academy, Battersea, which is increasing to six forms of entry, and Saint John Bosco College, which is moving to its brand-new Battersea home and will increase to seven forms of entry.

Wandsworth scoops football title

Wandsworth shared first place in both the boys and girls Balfour Beatty London Youth Games ParaGames football competitions.

Wandsworth won joint gold for secondary aged competitors with mild learning disabilities alongside competitors from City of London, Hackney and Kingston.

The London Youth Games, now in its 38th year, is Europe's largest youth sports event. It brings together all 33 London boroughs competing in 46 separate sporting events, taking place between November and July. Wandsworth was the overall winner last year and hopes to repeat its success this year.

OBE for Peggy

Former head of Paddock School, Peggy

Walpole, has been made an OBE in the recent Queen's birthday honours list.

Peggy recently retired from Paddock, and now works part-time at Maudsley Hospital. She was awarded the honour for services to children with special educational needs and disabilities.

At their last inspection, Ofsted inspectors praised Paddock's leadership and gave the school an outstanding rating. For information about upcoming changes at the school, see page 10.

Training with the Street Elite

The Street Elite Festival in Roehampton gave youngsters from local schools the chance to try their hand at sports taster sessions run by the graduates from the Street Elite programme.

Street Elite works with young people not in employment, education or training, and teaches them sports coaching and youth work skills. They are expected to take responsibility for organising and running their own training sessions and events and learn how to coach, basic first aid skills and how to handle conflict. They also get access to employment support and work placements for anyone who completes the programme.

The scheme is run by Change Foundation and Berkeley Foundation in association with the council.

All these pictures of the event including the cover shot, were taken by 15-year-old Rebecca Stowe, who hopes to become a professional photographer.

United Nations of Wandsworth

Forget Germany and Greece – the real debate the summer has been in the Wandsworth council chamber as some of the borough’s brightest pupils have battled it out at the Wandsworth Model United Nations General Assembly.

The two-day event saw teams of primary school students, each representing a different country, going head-to-head in formal debate on two subjects: ‘This house believes that children should have their own parliament’ and ‘This house believes that children should be able to choose their own teachers’.

The winner on day one was Franciscan School, and on day two Earlsfield, with both now going on to represent the borough at the English Speaking Union’s London Debate Challenge Final at Dartmouth House on July 29.

Heathmere School winning poster design

Ark Academy Putney winning poster design

The event also featured a poster competition, with pupils asked to design a poster illustrating an article from the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child. The winner on day one was Heathmere Primary and on day two Hillbrook.

A further competition was held the following week for secondary schools, with seven schools taking part. Winners of the debating competition were Burntwood School, and the winners of the poster competition were Ark Academy Putney.

update

The number of school places for children on the autistic spectrum is set to increase, following the go-ahead from planners for a new-look school building.

In the last Headstart we told you that after consulting with local people and parents, the council proposed making changes to the borough's special schools.

The proposals were:

- Greenmead Special School and Ronald Ross Primary School sharing the Ronald Ross site, following completion of a building scheme for both schools in September 2017

- Expanding Paddock Special School across the former Greenmead site, following completion of building adaptations in Easter 2018.

The changes were subject to approval by the council's planning committee to the planning application for the new-look site (pictured). Planners have now said yes, and work is expected to start soon.

History detectives

The standard of entries for the inaugural Wandsworth Heritage Awards was high, with students carrying out some detailed research of the borough's history.

In the under 8s category, Earlsfield Primary School students looked at the origins and history of the Battersea Dogs and Cats Home. Winner in the 8-10 age group was L'école de Battersea, whose students carried out detective work following the story of some tiles repaired by William De Morgan. The 11-16 age range was St Boniface RC School, who looked deeper into the stories of past pupils killed in the Great War. Anna Daley was commended for her poem, the Day Earlsfield Got Bombed.

The winners were presented with their awards by the Mayor of Wandsworth, Cllr Nicola Nardelli. She said: "We are very proud of our heritage here in Wandsworth. And I am pleased that these awards will encourage successive generations of children in our schools to get to know the history of their local area and the borough, and to develop a true sense of place and belonging."

Grand slam for Tim at Devas

British tennis sensation Tim Henman paid a visit to the Devas Club for an evening of sport, food and entertainment.

The evening was held to raise money for the club's sport programme and young people were able to enjoy a tennis masterclass with Tim. The player also officially opened a new rooftop football and basketball court at the Battersea club.

The evening was inspired by club leader Josie Benson's Jungle Marathon run – reported on in a previous Headstart. The club has expanded its sports facilities to engage more young people in to sport and fitness.

Find out more about Devas and other borough youth clubs at www.wandsworth.gov.uk/youth.

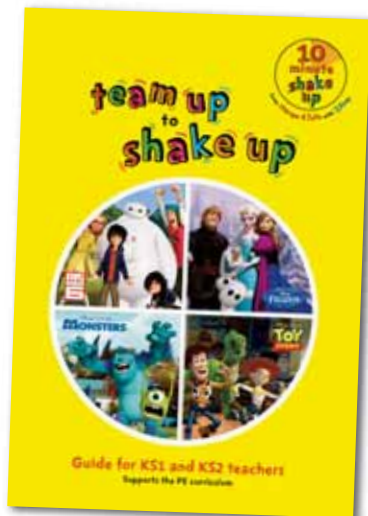

Get moving

Change for Life has linked up with Disney this summer to encourage everyone to get more active.

The 10 Minute Shake Up campaign features Disney characters to make it easier for young people and their families to get the recommended 60 minutes of physical activity a day by breaking it up into ten minute bursts.

Visit the website to sign up for a special 10 minutes sign up pack and get loads of tips on how to eat healthily and get more active. www.change4life.co.uk

Have your say on services

Wandsworth Council is modernising and improving community sexual health services in the borough and wants local people's views on how it does this. The services include contraception clinics, young people's sexual health clinics, chlamydia screening and outreach services.

Young Person of the Year winners

Mahnoor Rauf has won this year's Wandsworth Young Person of the Year award.

Mahnoor helped establish a girls' football project at the TRC Youth Club. She researched and presented a bid for funding to the Youth Opportunity Fund to cover the cost of equipment and running expenses and went on to captain the TRC Football Club Under 16 Girls.

"I've always had a really strong passion for football but I was also really inspired by the team GB women's football team in the London Olympics in 2012," she said. Other winners were:

Outstanding Achievement Award - Reiss Ormonde-Cunningham, who is a regional and county swimming champion .

The Overcoming Adversity Award - Callum Myles who overcame difficult circumstances to twice win the London Amateur Boxing Association championships.

Rotary Award for Contribution to the Community - Sophia Dinnall. A young carer who still makes time to be fully involved at her school and raise money for charity.

The Wandsworth Community Safety Award - Bailey Black. A role model for younger cadets in the Armed Cadets Force.

Group Award for Voluntary Work - Paddock School Metropolitan class. The class work in the school café where they prepare and cook soup and make sandwiches for sale.

Make sure you're Share Aware

Children and young people spend a lot of time online – but can we be sure they are safe?

Even games popular with young children, such as Minecraft and Club Penguin, can be made safer with a little knowhow, and older children using social networking needs guidance from mums, dads and carers on how to reduce any risks.

Almost a quarter of 11 and 12 year-olds with a social networking profile experienced something that upset them in the last year. Children are worried about being contacted by strangers, bullying, fake users and seeing inappropriate things.

The people in Wandsworth responsible for protecting the borough's children – the Wandsworth Safeguarding Children and Young Adults Board – is backing the NSPCC's Share Aware campaign.

You can visit the campaign for tips on

- How to tackle cyberbullying
- How to talk to your children about keeping safe
- What the most popular social apps and games are
- What age range games and apps are suitable for
- What other parents think
- Tools to help you protect your child.

Find out about how children are protected in Wandsworth at www.wscb.org.uk

Share Aware

In a national survey, many young people said they would like their parents to tell them more about privacy and location settings, but only a fifth of parents had done so. Games such as Minecraft are much safer once the privacy settings have been adjusted. You can find out how to do this on the Share Aware site.

Keeley and Judah:

"We are working on our bridge idea together. There's a dome in the middle for grown-ups, with a wildlife park with monkeys on one side of the bridge and pop-up computer screens on the other."

Schools design a new Thames bridge

Local school students have been designing their own Thames Bridges, inspired by the council's international competition to design a new pedestrian and cycle bridge to cross the Thames between Nine Elms and Pimlico.

The schools project is being supported by local architecture firms DPO and AllDesign. Year six pupils from St Georges, Chesterton and St Mary's schools are taking part, plus Year 9 students from Harris academy, who are competing in the secondary school category which sets a more complex set of design challenges.

Design professionals have visited each school to run workshops with the students and develop their skills and ideas. The winners will get vouchers and work experience opportunities with leading design practices.

The pictures show young people from St George's school with some of their designs.

Daisy: "Mine has giant ice-creams to hold up either end and when you go across you can taste different types of ice-cream. Ice cream is my favourite thing so that's how I got the idea"

Zeffron: "This bridge is a new generation - nothing like it has ever been done before. There's a cake stand, a chocolate fountain, hot dog stand, a playground and a free cinema. You can bounce all the way across the bridge on pods"

Leo: "Now I have had a go at this - I think I'd really like to be an architect when I'm older. I have never seen anything like the buildings the architect showed us. This is a great experience for me."

The new £755,000 children's centre in King George's Park is now officially open.

The centre, which has been named 'West Hill in the Park', builds on and expands the range of services offered at the nearby children's centre based at West Hill primary school.

It offers a daily full range of free children's and family services including drop-in stay and play services, health advice and parenting support and has a separate outdoor play area.

The new centre means that the council has been able to provide 32 free nursery places for children from lower income families at the West Hill centre. Nearly 1,800 free nursery places are being offered to two-year-olds from lower income families in Wandsworth as part of a £6m investment in their education and development.

Children's services spokesman Cllr Kathy Tracey said: "I am honoured and thrilled to have today officially opened this absolutely fantastic new centre for local families.

"The new building is much bigger, brighter and better than the one it replaced and has the space and room to provide a much more comprehensive and excellent range of services to young families in this part of the borough."

The borough's network of children's centres offer free stay and play for young children and their carers.

Keep pets safe this summer

Our friends at Battersea Dogs' and Cats' Home have offered some advice to Headstart readers to make sure they keep safe around dogs this summer.

As the weather warms up, our parks come alive with people and their pets. While it may be tempting to go and give a dog a pat, there are a few things to keep in mind so that you and the animal remain safe and happy.

Battersea Dogs & Cats Home goes into communities giving advice to people to encourage safe interactions with dogs. Last year it delivered 1363 talks to school students and youth groups. The charity has the following advice for healthy interactions with our four-legged friends.

Just like people, dogs can get angry, scared or shy. It's important to treat dogs with respect and leave them alone when they are sleeping, eating or playing with another dog.

If you see a dog that you would like to say hello to, it's best to ask the dog's owner if it's okay first. If the owner isn't there, never approach a dog. It's important to find out if the dog is friendly before you stroke it. If the owner allows it, walk up to the dog calmly and quietly. Make sure the dog can see you so that you don't startle it. Stand slightly to the side of the dog as standing face on can be scary for it. Gently offer the back of your hand to the dog to sniff. Make sure your fingers are tucked under so they don't point into the dog's face or eyes. After the dog has had a chance to sniff you, gently stroke its shoulder. Most dogs don't like being patted on the head.

Don't forget that all dogs have different personalities and like different things. Some dogs might find you interesting and come over to say hello. If you feel frightened and are holding something that resembles a toy or food you should drop it. Cross your arm and remain still until the dog gets bored and walks away. You can then move backwards slowly, keeping an eye on the dog.

For more information on staying safe around dogs please visit www.battersea.org.uk
